HUGE CROWD SEES FARM FIELD DAY

GRASS VALLEY: More than 800 persons, it is estimated, attended the field day exercises and demonstrations on the Walter Gage ranch, three miles south of Grass Valley.

The audience, consisting mostly of farm families, were intensely interested in the power of machinery, as it swept off the brush, filled in erosions and transformed the landscape.

In an unusual occasion the Nevada County Soil Conservation authorities joined with the State Forest Division, and farm implement dealers of Norther California in a big demonstration conserving the soil and natural resources. In charge of the event was Harry H. Hyatt, district government co-ordinator for the Soil Conservation Service.

More than a dozen machines, ranging from a baby Panther tractor to the big bulldozer took part in reclaiming the eroded areas. A demonstration of sprinkler systems and water penetration took place in an apple orchard. A sound truck was used to explain the various demonstrations whcih were scatered over a wide area.

W. P. Maguire, district farm forester of Placerville, discussed successful methods of thinning heavily timbered areas of young trees while a Disston chain saw was operated to illustrate his talk by cutting and trimming trees.

Lunch was served during the noon hour and several speakers were heard, among them State Senator Allen G. Thurman, Mayor H. T. Johnson of Roseville, candidate for the state senate, T. B. Plair, chief forester for the U. S. Soil Cooservation Service, who came from Portland to be present for the event, and W. C. Jacobsen, deputy director of the state department of agriculture.

Plair warned that only through adoption of conservation practices such as were shown on the Gage Ranch, may future generations be protected from an inheritance of depleted lands. He called those persons selfish who used the land without consideration for the generations to come.

The Hercules Powder Company demonstrated ditch blasting in the afternoon. The ditches could be used either for irrigation or drainage. One blast threw tons of mud into the air some of which reached the spectators 200 yards away. The ditches thus blasted open were cleared with a power shovel. A post hole digger was given a successful workout.

The spectators came from Marysville, El Dorado, Placer and Yuba Counties with many Nevada County residents among them. Two students from India, wearing the traditional beards and headgear of their country, came from Yuba College to witness the demonstrations. They seemed fascinated by the great variety and versatility of the farm machinery.

E. Hawn of San Rafael, Marin County, was arrested Tuesday of last week.

Sierra County legal offenders are now lodged in the Nevada County jail since Sierra County now has no jail, following the destruction by fire of the courthouse and jail at Downieville a year ago.

Hawn raised $1500 in bail and bailed out himself and the other two, each of whose bail was fixed at $500.

Her son, 16, was at the wheel, when the overloaded car failed to react to the brakes on the Bear Valley grade. It rolled over the bank at considerable speed and was demolished. Then Wes Cox, Grass Valley fullback, threw a lateral to Henderson, who threw a forward pass to Buddy Valeschini, quarterback, who made a touchdown. Al Brown was sent into the game again to kick a goal for the extra point.

WORK SOON TO BEGIN ON RIDGE ROAD

NEVADA CITY: County Road Commissioner J. F. O'Connor recently stated that he expects to begin the improvement of Ridge Road within the next two months. The road is an old one, much traveled on account of its scenic beauty.

O'Connor stated he would reconstruct the road at its west end where it runs betwen red clay banks. The money for this project is part of the so-called "Christmas tree' fund established by the state legislature.

The road commissioner said that he has just completed a two-mile piece of road, lying in Nevada County, from Truckee to the county line, leading to Brockway on Lake Tahoe. Placer County will build the rest of the road, about 17 miles. The cost for two miles was approximately $15,000.

LEGISLATORS THURMAN AND LINDSAY ADDRESS THRONG

NEVADA CITY: Lt. Governor Goodwin Knight addressed a large crowd here yesterday afternoon at 4 P. M. in front of the Elks Building on Pine between Broad and Commercial. Knight spoke under the auspices of the Nevada County Republican Central Committee, headed by Paul Ullrich.

Local arrangements were in charge of the Veterans for Thurman committee chairmanned by D. Robert Paine and including Stanley H. Halls, Robert C. Schiffner and John Sbaffi.

Accompanying Knight was State Senator Allen G. (Scoop) Thurman, a candidate for re-election. Arrangements in Grass Valley were in charge of Elton Williams.

Knight, campaigning for the Dewey-Warren slate, yesterday made a swing through Sacramento, Roseville, Auburn, Marysville, Grass Valley and Nevada City, speaking in each locality for the Republican ticket.

His party was met at the outskirts of Grass Valley and escorted to the corner of Mill and Main Streets, where he briefly addressed a large gathering.

Mayor Arthur B. Innis was master of ceremonies on the impromptu truck-platform. He introduced, in turn: Lt. Governor Knight, State Senator Thurman, Assemblyman-elect Francis C. Lindsay, and American Legion Commander, William Carey.

Knight covered a wide range of political topics. He spoke enthusiastically of the need for the adaptation of the world price for gold in the United States. As he did so, he called attention to his own intimate connection with gold mining, first as a hard rock miner and later, as a mine-owner.

Dewey and Warren, Knight pointed out, would deal with Communism abroad with a firm hand. And in Sacramento, said Knight, Communists would never be permitted to participate in government, since State employees are to be subjected to strict screening.

Knight said that both he and Warren wished for the termination of daylight saving time, but that in December California would have the greatest power-load in the history of the state, and termination of daylight saving time would be impossible until after the first of the year.

The national recognition for California that will come with the probable election of Governor Warren to the vice-presidency, Knight related, was long overdue. Such recognition for the great state commonwealth of the west, he said, had been denied under the administration of the Democrats.

In speaking of the capability of the Dewey-Warren team in government, Knight publicly acknowledged the fine work of many Democrats and former Democrats in supporting the Republican candidates.

The Lt. Governor's motor cavalcade entered Nevada City at 3:40 P. M., escorted by Captain Joe Blake of the Highway Patrol, and many prominent Republicans of Grass Valley. He and his party went immediately to the meeting place in front of the Elks Home, where he conferred with members of the Republican Central Committee and other civic leaders.

Knight concluded his 15 minute address with an admonition to all present to vote, whatever their inclination, and reminded the public that, in the probable event of a Republican success at the polls Tuesday, the office of the President, Vice-President, and himself as the next governor of California, were always open and sensitive to the desires and requests of the people.

The audience applauded the Lt. Governor's spech enthusiastically. It was delivered in his usual direct and sincere manner.

The other speakers confined themselves to brief remarks: Mayor Innis welcomed each enthusiastically to the community. Senator Thurman, in a miniature "interview" with Knight, related his appreciation of the strong support given him in two past elections in both of which he received more votes than any other candidate.

D. Robert Paine, who was in charge of the local arrangements, sported a red, white and blue Dewey-Warren campaign button eight inches in diameter.

The Grass Valley Chamber of Commerce will arrange for the community Christmas Party. If weather permits this party will probably be held under the Christmas tree in cooperation with the city's school children.

Christmas carols will be in charge of the city's churches. Jolly old St. Nick will be the business of the Grass Valley Elks. The Business and Professional Women's Club will have charge of the Christmas decorating contest in the residential sections.

The Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West will see that all toys that need mending and painting are cared for and distributed to homes that Santa Claus might forget.

GOLD DIGGER'S TRAIL

Charles Scott Haley

On the South Fork of the Salmon lived a very intelligent half breed by the names of Alvin Orcutt. One day he was sitting in his cabin door when along the trail came a Slovak wheeling a wheelbarrow with a sack of flour and other prospecting equipment in it. He had brought all his food and supplies with him clear over Salmon Mountain and down the trail for forty miles in this queer outfit, as he had no money to buy a packmule. He was looking for a place to prospect for gold.

Orcutt, an experienced miner, could hardly believe his eyes. A tenderfoot who had never seen a gold mine, and who carried his supplies in his wheelbarrow. Any place on the hills would do for such a fool, who was foredoomed to failure. So he pointed across the river to Graham Gulch, just to get rid of the man, and told him that was as good a place as any. Prospectors and pocket-hunters had dug all over the gulch, but nobody had ever found anything.

A veteran pocket hunter whom I knew, by the name of Hildreth, had panned all over the place a month before, and abandoned the gulch as worked out. The Slovak started in on one of Hildreth's holes, and in six inches more work, took out a pan of nuggets containing five hundred dollars. He continued driving in, and by the time that Orcutt came over to see how he was getting along, he had accumulated nearly ten thousand dollars in nugget gold. The ground was getting heavy to hold, and as he knew nothing of mining, it commenced to cave. Orcutt pointed out to him that he was apt to kill himself, and offered to buy the hole as it stood. The Slovak refused.

A few days later he came over to Orcutt's cabin, trembling with fright. "What you pay me for my mine? I go now."

It seemed that the hole had finally caved in on

MAN FINED $10 FOR SMOKING

NEVADA CITY: Frank A. Hunter of Bell, Orange County, disregarding instructions on forest road closed to smoking, was arrested by forest officers. Appearing before Justice of the Peace George W. Gildersleeve, he pleaded guilty and was fined $10.

Keith Macdonald, fire control chief for Tahoe National Forest, stated yesterday that the fire hazard still exists. Despite cool weather there has not been rain enough to dampen the forest. The rains, he said, are overdue, but in the meantime, recreation seekers and travelers through the forest are urged to be as careful of their smoking as they would be during the warm summer months.

IT'S HALLOWEEN!

The night of October 30th is one night most merchants could do without.

Of course, for days beforehand, there's always a brisk sale of masks, black cat and witch costumes, fancy paper goods and other paraphernalia needed by small fry to celebrate Halloween in style. There's a run on candy stores, too, by oldsters laying in protective provisions for that juvenile form of black magic known as trick-or-treat.

But the profit from the Halloween trade probably doesn't compensate for the painstaking, backbreaking labor on the morning of October 31 when chalk must be erased from sidewalks, and windows wiped free of soap.

Juvenile authorities being notoriously prone to look the other way on this night of all night of the year, merchants have learned to grin and bear it.

But a few do better than that. The Irving Street Merchants Association in San Francisco declares: "As long as Halloween havoc is inevitable, we're going to encourage it!"

Word has gone out to the neighborhood urchins to start early and decorate stre windows to their hearts' content. Prizes are promised for the best works of art!

Those Irving Street merchants sound like a progressive lot. If they would just figure out some way to get the kids to clean up the mess in the morning, we predict their plan would spread like wildfire!

MEAT AND HOMES

Some people are unable to buy as much meat as they would like. Some people cannot build homes because of record prices for labor and supplies. During the depression steers on the hoof sold for as little as six cents a pound ,and hogs went for three cents. There were people then who could not buy meat or build homes, even at rock-bottom prices. Then, as now, supply and demand were the controlling factors in establishing prices—and it is always true that families in the lower income brackets are constantly confronted with the problem of how to make both ends meet.

Wages and employemnt are at record levels. This has generated a tremendous demand for meat. The supply of meat has not kept up with that demand. Last year the feed crops were relatively short. As a consequence, livestock numbers were reduced. The marketing of beef cattle in 1948 has run well below the level of 1947. The point is that for several years we have been eating our beef cattle faster than we have been producing them. Meat animals aren't machines that can be swiftly made in any desired quantity on a production line. It takes months and years to ready stock for market and no efficiency expert has found a short cut. When demand tends to be greater than the supply, high prices are inevitable.

A reimposition of price controls would discourage production, and probably bring about an acute meat shortage. Much of the meat available would be diverted into the black market. And the lower income consumers would be worse off than ever.

Increased meat production is necessary. It will come eventually. In the meantime, supply and demand establish the prices at which meat is sold in our free market, and it is folly to blindly condemn farmers, packers or anyone else.

GOVERNMENT DOESN'T CREATE

According to Governor Dewey. "if it had been up to Washington to develop . . . our electrical industry, you can be pretty sure we'd still be using kerosene lamps."

You don't have to be a Republican or Democrat to realize the truth of that. All of the hoop-de-doo that has surrounded the government's multi-billion dollar ventures into socialized power has obscured the fact that government hasn't created a single, solitary thing. The private utilities of this country pioneered electrical development when skeptics thought the electric light was only an amusing novelty. They pioneered central station power, often at a great financial risk. They perfected long distance transmission lines and farm electrification before the REA and similar Federal agencies existed even in imagination. They harnessed water power and put it to work for the good of the country decades before the government plants were built.

Socialized electric plants and dams are actually examples of the ingenuity of private enterprise. The generators and all the rest of the intricate equipment they use are made by free American industry. They were invented by private citizens, not by bureaucrats working for some government agency. Government can imitate—but it seldom creates.

Cheap and abundant electric power caused an industrial and agricultural revolution in this country. It has an intimate and direct bearing on our living and working standards, our employment, our wage envelopes. And it was developed every step of the way by private enterpise. Today, as in the past, pivate enterprise is going ahead with the job of supplying us with over 80 per cent of all the electricity we use. And the alleged achievements of tax subsidized socialism pale to insignificance beside it.

Industrial Deaths In 1948 Totaled 495

SACRAMENTO: Sudden death as a result of an industrial accident came to 495 California workers during the first nine months of 1948, Paul Scharrenberg, Director of Industrial Relations, announced today.

"The only comfort to be derived from that figure," said Mr. Scharrenberg, "is that it is 59 less than last year when 554 workers were killed during the corresponding period.

"The decrease in industrial fatalities is particularly significant in view of the fact that employment this year was higher than in 1947. Thus there has been a genuine decline in the ratio of industrial deaths to the number employed.

"In addition to those killed, more than 105,000 workers suffered disabling industrial injuries in California during the first nine months of this year.

"Deaths resulting from vehicular accidents numbered 168 during the nine-months period. Most of these were collisions involving motor vehicles, but included were 27 deaths resulting from airplane crashes, and 12 fromfalls from motor vehicles.

"Thirty-eight workers died as a result of injuries received in falls from elevated work places such as scaffolds and roofs.

"Falling or sliding tres, logs, and branches in the woods and around mills caused the death of 32 workers in the first three quarters of this year. Electrical accidents resulted in 31 fatalities, including 23 which involved contact with overhead conductors through equipment or by personal contact.

"Among the industry ggroups, manufacturing accounted for the largest number of fatal accidents with a total of 139. Within this group the largest number of deaths, 56, was reported by the lumber industry. Second largest of the manufacturing industries was food processing with 20 fatalities.

"Construction, with 86 fatalities, ranked next to manufacturing,followed by transportation and utilities (65), trade (62), agriculture (45), state and local government (34), mining (33), and service and finance (31.

"All but 8 of the 495 workers fatally injured were males. Two boys under the age of 18 years and 20 men over 65 years old are included in this total."

A Word About The Veterans-- And The Building They Deserve

Grass Valley has a war veterans' building, so has Truckee. As a life-long resident of Nevada County I'm proud of those facts, but—I sincerely believe that Nevada City, county seat, is fully entitled to a memorial building honoring her sons who so valiantly wore their country's uniform in her defense. Much has been said regarding a Nevada City veterans' building; too little has been done. Statistics show that 90% of the populace have war veteran relationships and I firmly believe that Nevada City and environs with a population of approximately 5,000 residents deserve the tribute of a building erected to those formerly in the armed service. Such realization would be one of my utmost endeavors, if elected as Supervisor of the First Supervisorial District.

I believe that the state of neglect should be removed from our cemeteries, that final resting places of the departed should not be eyesores of neglect but rather well-kept places of respectful dignity. I consider some of the cemeteries to be in disgraceful condition, although the creation of cemetery districts were designed to relieve this condition. It would be my purpose if elected Supervisor to clean up the cemeteries and keep them permanently attractive through perpetual care.

I realize that many of the residents of the First Supervisorial district may be classed as "newcomers" and for their information, and those of the District at large, I submit this brief sketch—

I was born in Nevada City 52 years ago and have been a resident of this county since that time. My education was gained in public schools. Married and enjoying the pleasure of a family of 6 children. I saw two of my sons enter the U. S. armed forces—one never to return. My public service record includes 12 years as Sheriff of Nevada County and 10 years as County Farm business manager. I've worked in Nevada County mines; I've worked in constructing her highways. I am a property owner and a taxpayer. Nevada County is my home, I believe in its present and I am convinced that it has even a still better future.

If elected to the office of Supervisor I sincerely promise, as a public official, to give my very best in honest work, time and sincerity to the people of the District I would serve.

Veterans' News

Veterans Administration spends millions of dollars each year trying to establish the identity of veterans who write the 10,000 "mystery letters" received by the VA every day.

"Mystery letters' are those in which the veterans fails to include sufficient information to identify himself among the 24,000,000 persons whose names are in VA's master index file.

The VA receives 125,000,000 letters a year and many of them are simply signed "John Smith." There happens to be 217,000 Smiths in VA files and 12,500 of them are named John. There are also 170,000 Johnsons and 110,000 Millers.

In order for "John Smith" to become an individual to the Veterans Administration he should use the serial number assigned him while in the armed services and in addition his VA claim or insurance number if he has one.

A veteran who wishes fast action on his leter to the Veterans Administration should include his full name and address, date of birth, service serial number, branch of service and VA claim or insurance number.

The letter which does not contain the claim or insurance number must go to the master index file where the identity of the writer is established through his serial number. This results in delay in answering the letter.

The real "tax-eaters" are the letters which contain only a signature and VA has receeived thousands of them. Many contained cash for payment of insurance premiums. The letter and envelope contain nothing to identify the writer but the signature.

In these cases the postmark is cross-checked and VA's handwriting and fingerprint experts go to work. VA employes may spend hours trying to establish the identity of the writer. In some cases the identities of the "mystery letter" writers are never solved.

Question: I wish to purchase an automobile house trailer that I can use during my vacation. Will Veterans Administration guarantee a loan for the purpose?

Answer: No. Loans for pleasure purposes can not be guaranteed or insured by Veterans Administration.

Question: I would like to change the beneficiary on my National Service Life Insurance without letting the old beneficiary know about it. May I do this?

Answer: Yes. A veteran may change the beneficiary of his NSLI policy at any time without their knowledge or consent.

Three hundred properties were financed for California veterans through the State Farm and Home Purchase Plan during September, it was announced today by Lawrence C. Stevens, State Director of Veterans Affairs.

The State advanced to veterans a total of $2,042,121 on the purchase of 297 homes and $27,000 on the purchase of three farms.

In addition, 72 veterans already holding State contracts on their homes received a total of $33,684 for repairs and remodeling.

The State now has 16,094 properties under contract for veterans in all parts of California, Stevens reported. A grand total of 29,766 properties have been acquired by veterans under the Farm and Home Purchase Plan since it went into operation in 1922.

Under the plan the Department of Veterans Affairs advances up to $7,500 on the purchase of a home or $13,500 for a farm to veterans who are natives of California or entered service from this state. Contracts provide for repayment over a period ranging up to 20 years, at low rates of interest (currently 3 per cent). The plan also provides havings on fire insurance, and Home Protection Plan of Life Insurance. Premiums under the latter plan were recently reduced to 50 cents per month on each $1,000 of the unpaid balance of hte contract.

him, and he had barely dug himself out. He had taken out twenty thousand dollars from his hole, and he sold it to Orcutt, sight unseen, for five hundred more, wheelbarrow and all. He started out for Yreka and was through with mining. Eventually he went back to the Croatian haven from which he came.

Orcutt and his brother went in and took out another twenty thousand dollars, after retimbering the hole, before the pocket played out. The money did not last long, however, and when I knew Alvin Orcutt he was propounding a somewhat pessimistic brand of socialistic philosophy. In fact, he said that any man who accumulated over five hundred dollars at any time by working for it, had made it dishonestly—as that figure was the utmost limit that a man could make by honest means. Maybe he did not include pocket hunting.

I was assistant superintendent of a mine over on Coffee Crek, just over the head of the south fork of the Salmon River, for one winter. W ewere installing a hydraulic elevator in what had been an inclined shaft, the entry for an old drift mine. There was water galore coming down the bottom of the creek, and we had installed a very temperamental water lift to pump out the flow, while we worked in the bottom of the shaft. This lift had a habit of quitting its work, especially on the night shift, which I handled. When we were warned by the noise of its suction that the lift was no longer working, we had about fifty seconds to get the entire crew out of the drift and up the shaft, as the water rose in about three waves to the top of the tunnel. It was cold and dreary work, with snow flying

Just Wonderin'

I Wonder if we realize
That we are members, you and I,
And that its fate is linked with ours
As every passing day goes by.
And are we doing all we should
To win success for every plan
Which tends to overcome the ills
That now afflict the creature, man.

Three years ago, on the twenty-fourth of October, 1945, the great ship, Hope of the World, was formally launched and to her, men gave the name, United Nations.

Upon that day, we, you and I, became members of a great world organization, ,and if we are not active members, it is certainly a pity.

Fifty-eight nations are now engaged in forging a better way of life for all mankind, and as in the days when our own little nation was being welded into shape, "hammers beat and anvils ring." What can we do about it? We can be true and faithful members of this world organization, which has undertaken the most stupendous task ever conceived by the mind of man.

The first thing of importance to us is to become acquainted with the work being done by the various departments of U. N. They are indeed many and they are alive; slowly and painfully perhaps, but still functioning. The objects to be attained are so vastly potential that speedy accomplishment is not to be expected. Progress will of necessity be slow, perhaps extending over a period of years, but the encouraging aspect of the situation is that the organization still exists—that fifty-eight nations of this troubled world are actually bound together, have actually signed an agreement and are pulling together for that which we all know to be necessary, if our civilization is to survive.

It is vitally necessary at this point of time to realize that we, individually, are members of the U. N. Not outsiders looking in, but working members cumbered with the tasks of serving, and serving well the objectives which are deemed to be good and worthy.

The attitude of mind, the thoughts, the speech, the actions of each member of U. N. are of the utmost importance. Americans can serve every day by helping to keep their own nation united, by killing, whenever possible, the ugly dragons of intolerance, racial and religious discrimination, injustice and bigotry. Let's dust off our copies of the Bill of Rights and saturate our minds with its contents. Who knows, there may be those in our very own state of California who have never read the Bill of Rights and have never learned what it is all about. In the homes, the schools and the churches, we should hear more of this immortal document. Let us examine the foundation upon which this nation was reared and let us realize that the U. N. also has a charter of human rights and that the task of making it effective is the business of us all.

What are we thinking, saying, doing? The answers to those queries are important. "Our echoes roll from soul to soul and grow forever and forever." What is the nature of the echoes we are creating?

Said the little covered bridge over Oregon Creek: "How much longer do I have to be run over before the Native Daughters will pin a plaque on me?"

Miss Marilyn West Wed To Leonard Prisk

GRASS VALLEY: Miss Marilyn Frances West of Colfax, Placer County, married Leonard Adams Prisk last Saturday night in Emmanuel Episcopal Church. Rev. Frank Buck, rector, officiated in the double ring ceremony.

The church was filled with the friends and relatives of the couple, some even standing in the aisles. Miss West was escorted to the altar by her father, Francis E. West.

The maid of honor was Miss Anita Turner of Grass Valley and bridesmaids were Miss Winnie Merriam and Mrs. Charlotte Verdi Cox, sorority sisters of the bride from the College of the Pacific. Little Miss Johnnie Gay Colling was flower girl.

Don Prisk was best man, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were James Henry of Albany, cousin of the bride, and Lou Butz of Nevada City.

Chester Prisk, uncle of the bridegroom, sang, With This Ring I Thee Wed. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Prisk, world war veteran currently employed in the Pacific Fruit Growers Exchange in Colfax.

"Everlasting Punishment is the subject of the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon for Sunday, October 31, with the Golden Text taken from Galatians: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" (6:7).

The following citations are included in the sermon:

The Bible: "Sing, O ye heavens; for the Lord hath done it; shout,ye lower parts of the earth: break forth into singing, ye mountains, O forest, and every tree therein: for the Lord hath redeemed Jacob. and glorified him in Israel" (Isaiah 44:23).

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "For victory over a single sin, we give thanks and magnify the Lord of Hosts. What shall we say of the mighty conquest over all sin? A louder song, sweeter than has ever before reached high heaven, now rises clearer and nearer to the great heart of Christ; for the accuser is no there, and Love sends forth her primal and everlasting strain" (p. 568).

outside, and I was glad when we had finished it.

We then started to open up a cut with hydraulic giants, to drain our sluice boxes down toward the elevator. It was my custom to make a round about eleven o'clock and to relieve the night operator on the giant so that he could go in by the fire and warm up and eat his lunch.

The night piper was a little German by the name of Barton. One cold and snowy night, I walked down to take his place for an hour, and he was about stiff with cold. He turned to me, and barked,

"Water comin' down from de heavens! Water cmin' down de creeks! Dam fool blacer miner stand out in de creek with giant and make more water. What you t'ink, eh?"

I agreed with him, and he trudged off to his fire and his dinner.

Another old timer by the name of Dan Molloy had a small mine above Sawyers Bar, which I examined. Dan used to work this property by himself and put the rock through a small tinpot mill which he had lugged up the trail, section by section, on his back. The ground was rich enough so that by his unaided effort in the spring of the year, he took out four or five thousand dollars regularly.

In may of each year, he would get on the stage at Sawyers Bar ,bound for San Francisco. He would live in a modest hotel on the south side of Market for six months, and enjoy himself according to his lights. Then, when fall was nearly over and he had to get ready for spring operations, he would show up at Sawyers Bar and start up his trail—always with enough money left in the bank to buy his winter supplies and grub for the next season. This life he kept up for a score of years, until he was found dead in his cabin one morning.

Probably the happiest and most prosperous man in the whole district was P. L. Young, who lived at Orleans. An Englishman of good family, he had come to this paradise, married one of the wealthier daughters of the country, and decided to make his home here until he died. He had built a very delightful home on a bluff overlooking the Klamath River, and intermittently pursued his profession of engineering as he felt like it, and in the meantime lived a comfortable and well fed life in civilized and typically Engglish manner..

SECRETARY OF STATE URGES HEAVY VOTE

SACRAMENTO: The more people vote, the nearer we are going to approach perfect government, it was declared today by Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan as he urged a heavy visit to the polls at the November 2 general election.

With a record registration of 5,062,089 and an anticipated vote casting of betwen 83 and 85 per cent, Jordan stressed that the selection of poor public officials may result because of the lack of interest on the part of voters.

"Because of this condition on the part of many who are eligible to vote, some of our public officials may become apathetic to the needs of those they represent," the secretary o fstate declared.

"It may be well to remember that not over one third of the world's population has free elections in all the sense in which we understand them.

"We know this does not include Russia and those countries the Soviets dominate. Of course, folks may vote there but only for or against the slate of candidates selected by that government. Nobody else may run for office.

"To our way of thinking, that is not much of an election .

"The American form of government isn't perfect — nothing human is perfect—but, in my opinion, it is the best approach to sound government that has yet been devised.

"The best interests of the community, state and nation will be served by the ballot box—providing all who are qualified exercise their privileges."

Not to avenge one's self upon one's enemies, is the command of almighty wisdom; and we take this to be a safer guide than the promptings of human nature.—Mary Baker Eddy.

The truest and surest way in which we can serve our fellowmen is not so much to do anything for them, as to be the very truest, purest, noblest being we know how.—Frances P. Cobbe.

GARDENS. In the Northern Mines, our October gardens are like ball rooms strewn with tatterings from gowns of grand ladies. Evidence of summer's finery is scattered everywhere. Whereever we may go, we see men and women engaged in a labor of love, putting their gardens in order. The housewife and laborer find time to devote to the task. The professional men and women relax, when away from offices, in their gardens. They are places for planning as well as forgetting. Our gardens are a kind of medicine.

POSSESSION. To own a garden for your pleasure or need is an inherited American right. We are not slaves of a state. We are a free people. The fruits of our labor belong to us. The quantity depending upon the time devoted to the garden. There is no one to tell us how long a time we should devote to them. We can freely give to our neighbor, or accept from him, what has been produced, whether flowers or food. We do not have to own land to possess a garden. The things we grow belong to us, not to the landlord or to the state.

APPRAISAL. You can judge a man or woman by his or her garden. Our neighbor, next to his wife and children, loves his garden. He is a carpenter and builds things. At heart he is an earth man and his garden is productive. He has his favorite flowers and likes to talk about them. That garden of his tells one that he is a kind and generous man and one to be trusted. He is not appraised by the amount of money he earns, but by the amount of pleasure he gives his fellow man.

RICHES. What wealth has the person in whose garden grows an old sugar maple! We have made special trips to view some of these ancient trees when in all of their autumn glory. In their foliage they display the red of the soil and the gold of the mines. We are blest, we Californians of the old historic diggings, with our gardens, our growing riches and our freedom. And those of us who walk and labor in our gardens, walk and labor with God.

May-flowers fade with the May,
And are past and gone,
Butterflies live their day,
And the year goes on:
Yet the heart that was blith
With the flower and the butterfly
Lingers, and lives, and outlives,
While the years go by.

NUGGET RECIPES

Leading chefs are reducing their art to simplified form for the homemaker.

Here is a recipe created by Chef Nicholas Marchitelli of the famous Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D. C.

PICKLED SHRIMP HOMEMAKER STYLE

1½ pounds boiled large shrimp
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 teaspoons finely chopped onions
6 tablespooss catsup
2 bay leaves
Pinch of garlic salt (large)
1 cup French dressing

Prepare the boiled shrimp by removing the intestine and shell; leave tails on the shrimp and insert toothpick lengthwise to keep the shrimp rigid while cooking. Heat vegetable oil in skillet; add onions and fry until light brown; add the shrimp and stir lightly for a few seconds. Add the catsup, bay leaves, and garlic salt; stir until blended, then add French dressing. Simmer SLOWLY for 12 to 14 minutes with lid on skillet. Stir once or twice so shrimp do not scorch. Serve hot in sauce. Ample portions for four persons. This dish is equally delightful when served chilled as appetizers.

KITCHEN TIPS: If you have a cracked egg and want to boil it, just crack the other end! None of the white will be lost in boiling.

You get more juice from lemons and oranges if you roll them until they are slightly soft before squeezing them.

Food is bound to get monotonous if it's always cooked the same way.

Henri Sounier, manager of Pierres's restaurant in the nation's capital, suggests this new treatment for macaroni.

CURRIED MACARONI

8 tablespoons mayonnaise
2 teaspoons curry powder (or to taste)

Cook and drain macaroni. Blend the mayonnaise and curry powder, add to the macaroni. Heat in double boiler. Garnish with bacon or hard cooked eggs. Serves 4 persons.

Blending the curry powder and mayonnaise in this new hot dish recipe provides a distinctly new taste thrill.

KITCHEN TIPS: Wilted vegetables may be revived before cooking by placing them in a bowl of cold water in the refrigerator. Wilted vegetables will not cook tender.

Cream cheese mixed with salad dressing, chopped green peppers, and prepared horseradish makes a wonderful sandwich spread.

Try varying the basic item in your salads just as often as you vary the other ingredients. Instead of lettuce try using endive, chicory, romaine, or even raw spinach. They are all good.

Did you know that any of the creamed varieties of cheese go well spread on ginger snaps?

Crumble stale cake and line dessert dishes with it before pouring in custard mixtures. This makes an excellent dessert.

A most unusual appetizer has been created for the average cook by Maitre d'Hotel Mino of the famous Chalfonte and Haddon Hall hotels in Atlantic City.

CANAPE MAISON

1 hard cooked egg
½ green pepper
½ pimiento
6 fillets of anchovies
1 tomato (peeled)
2 tablespoons salad dressing
Several drops of Worcestershire sauce
Tuna fish—amount to equal the quantity of egg

Dice, mix, and spread on thin toast. Place in chafing dish, cook in melted butter. Serves 4. If you have no chafing dish, heat in shallow pan over a low flame.

KITCHEN TIPS: Many people do not know the principal difference betwen salad dressing and mayonnaise. Salad dressing contains starch, mayonnaise does not.

Prick the entire surface of a pie shell for a fruit or cream pie with a fork. This eliminates air bubbles and prevents blistering in the finished crust.

For that extra crisp bacon, start frying in a cold pan. Keep the flame low and drain off the excess fat as it cooks.

Lemon pie is especially delicious when coconut is sprinkled over the meringue, and the pie toasted in a slow oven.

Here is a broiled dinner that will save you heat ,and give you meat and potatoes. It's a budget saver ,for sure.

CHEESE STUFFED FRANKFURTERS

1 lb. frankfurters
1 cup grated cheese
2 tablespoons salad dressing

Split the frankfurters lengthwise. Mix together the cheese and salad dressing and stuff the frankfurters. Set them 5 to 6 inches under the broiler for about 8 minutes.

You broil the potatoes at the same time. Slice boiled potatoes, coat them with butter or margarine and broil until golden brown.

KITCHEN TIPS: Sprinkle fresh pear halves with lemon juice. Fill with currant jelly. Place around roast chicken as garnish.

A combination of lard and butter, or lard and margarine, makes a very flaky, tasty pastry.

One tablespoon of cornstarch purpose flour in thickening qualequals two tablespoons of all- ity.

WHERE WHISPERS TURN TO SHOUTS

How outpost repeater stations keep your long distance calls at almost home-town clarity

1. Your voice gets a boost in repeater stations like this one. For currents fade on the lines and without amplifiers, your voice would soon be lost. The equipment can literally turn a faded voice into a roar. Much of it requires only periodic check-ups like the one the technician is giving it here.

2. Vast Western distances make it necessary for us to build stations all along our cross-country lines to keep your voice going through with normal clarity and volume. On some lines repeaters are spaced 70 miles apart. On others they're as close as 8 miles. You may have noticed some of them from the highway.

3. Specially-trained men keep a 24-hour watch at key stations. When they spot possible trouble they get a crew on the job in a hurry . . . often before lines go out. For putting cross-country calls through reliably, with cross-the-street clarity, is part of our job of furnishing the best possible service to the West.

4. When you make a telephone call, you hire a valuable servant at low cost . . . a more useful servant than ever. It can do more jobs . . . run more errands. For today there are twice as many telephones in the West as ten years ago. Thousands more go in each week. And each new telephone added makes every other telephone more useful.

OVER FIVE MILLION MAY VOTE IN STATE, 11,234 IN COUNTY

SACRAMENTO: Another record registration was announced today by Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan who said 5,062,089 Californians are eligible to vote at the forthcoming general election November 2.

The current registration is 29½ per cent more than the 3,566,734 who qualified to go to the polls in the last presidential election of 1944. In addition, Jordan said, the registration increased 8½ per cent from the June primary, or a boost of 429,960 registrants.

Of the total registration 2,892,270 are listed as Democrats and 1,908,208 as Republicans. The Secretary of State said of the 5,062,089 registered, Democrats accounted for 57.14 per cent and Republicans 37.70 per cent. The Democratic registration was 34 per cent greater than the Republican.

Breaking down the figures still more, Jordan said the registration showed that since earlier this year the Democrats had increased their registration by 226,[illegible] and the Republicans, 158,985.

Registration by counties showed that the Democrats had the majority in 55 out of 58, with the Republicans retaining two counties—Alpine and Orange—and gaining Mono County.

Jordan said other party registrations were: Independent Progressive, 22,461; Prohibition, 6,842; Miscellaneous, 8,730; declined to state, 223,578.

The largest registration came from Los Angeles County with a total of 2,12,858, composed of 1,200,979 Democrats and 781,956 Republicans. In second place was San Francisco County with 462,836, including 292,,682 Democrats and 155,770 Republicans, followed by Alameda County with a total of 416,731, composed of 234,897 Democrats and 163,591 Republicans.

Smallest registration in the state was shown in Alpine County with a total of 178.

Registration in Nevada County is as follows: Democratic, 6,245; Republican, 4,579; Independent Progressive, 59; Prohibition, 4; Miscellaneous, 15; Declined to state, 332. Registration totals 11,234.

TIME FOR CLASS

By Chico State College

"Daddy, What Time Is It?"

"Daddy, what does your watch say?"

"Oh, about two-thirty."

The question, hopefully asked and the answer, casually given, and a golden opportunity to pass along some of the treasures of our cultural knowledge is gone forever. After all, what did your watch say? why was it two-thirty and not two-five or two-fifty? Why is the watch arranged as it is? Perhaps we do not know the answers, or perhaps we think it is of too little interest to find out.

Actually what your watch says is spoken in very foreign tongues. The figures on the face may be either Roman or what we call Arabic. Although the latter type come to us by way of the Arabs, they are actually Hindu, the product of an early people who lived on the island of Ceylon nearly two thousand years ago.

But if the characters themselves are foreign and old, the elements they represent are much more so, for they go back some five thousand years to the land of Babylon. The twelve hours to divide the day passed from the ancient Sumerians by a devious route to the Greeks and thence to the Romans, who carried it to the North-Europeans and the English, who brought it finally to our new land of America.

It is thought that at one time the twelve hours divided evenly the period betwen sunrise and sunset; and thus the "hours" were of continually different length, for the summer day is long and the windter day short. But such an arrangement was impractical after the invention of a time measuring device. This ancestor of our modern watch was simply a jar for water with a small hole in it. So the number of hours was kept at twelve for the day and twelve for the night but they were made of equal length.

But why sixty minutes in the hour? And why the sixty seconds that the second hand sweeps off? Here again speaks ancient Babylon. On sun-baked clay Babylonian tablets made before 3600 B. C. is found the sexagesimal system of notation, whose base is sixty. Its existence five thousand years ago seems proved beyond reasonable doubt.

Some say that the Babylonians thought the years consisted of 360 days and likening it to a circle they divided it in six equal parts, and so arrived at sixty. Others doubt this, for there is evidence that the Babylonians knew the year to be greater than 360 days. Probably it was a deliberate choice, based upon its inherent mathematical desirability. But whatever the reason, it was used there and is still used today in our measure of time and angles.

What does your watch say? It says, "Though I am the product of the most modern watchmaker's art, I carry on my face the features of antiquity. I speak by characters two thousand years old, created in Ceylon and now used around the world. My language is the work of ancients whose sun-baked tablets, found in Babylon and some five thousand years old, proclaim its place of origin. To you, Oh my master, it is two hours, thirty-one minutes and twenty-six seconds, p. m."

Don't Be A LEGISLATIVE BEGGAR

vote NO on proposition No. 13
(The Senate-packing Reapportionment Scheme)
AND
prevent left wing radical bosses from making legislative beggars out of you and your communities!

HERE'S WHAT PROPOSITION No. 13 DOES TO YOU:

- IT makes your vote worthless by turning over absolute control of Leglislative Government to the four coastal metropolitan areas of California.
- IT scraps the "Federal Plan" of check-and-balance representation in Senate and Assembly — a plan tested nationally by over 150 years of Congressional law-making under which metropolitan and non-metropolitan areas have a dual voice in government.
- IT paves the way for a return of bossism in even more vicious guise than existed before Left-Wing Radicalism was injected into modern power politics.
- IT tells rural California, and the inland cities, covering 94 per cent of the State's area, and producing most of the State's new wealth, to keep quiet about the affairs of their Government.
- IT concentrates the power to tax—which is the power to destroy—in the hands of big metropolitan interests and substitutes class conflicts for the understanding and cooperation now existing between city and country dwellers.

IT MAKES YOU AND YOUR NEIGHBORS LEGISLATIVE PAUPERS

Don't let this happen!

Rally your voting strength; tell your neighbors and friends in San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego and Oakland how you feel about this scheme. Get out a 100 per cent "NO" vote on Proposition No. 13. YOU'LL NEED IT TO DEFEAT THIS SENATE-PACKING POWER GRAB!

THE FARMER'S CORNER

By Ralph H. Taylor

In the current series of articles on the November ballot propositions, the writer has already dealt with the subjects of reapportionment — Proposition 13 — and the anti-featherbedding initiative — Proposition 3. Since these columns appeared, however, there have been important developments in both controversies which warrant their consideration again in this and a following column.

First, let's look at reapportionment—and let's be realistic about what we see. Reports indicate that this Senate-packing measure may succeed unless every California voter who understands its real implications goes to the polls on November 2 and votes "NO". Labor bosses — not the least among them Harry Bridges, who at this moment is engaged in a self-styled "finish fight" with waterfront employers—are reported to be confident that Proposition 13 is "in the bag."

Whether or not the optimism of these labor leaders is well founded is certainly debatable because it is incomprehensible that fair-minded voters, whether they live in Los Angeles, San Francisco, or any other metropolitan area will want to deprive 54 rural counties of an effective voice in the State Legislature, particularly when these are the counties wherein the great bulk of California's natural resources and basic productive wealth are concentrated. It is the production of these counties on which the people in the urban areas live and trade. Their own selfish interests should prompt them to safeguard jealously the future of their primary suppliers. But will they?

It is true that the sense of fairness of metropolitan voters may be overcome by appeals to prejudice and to selfishness. Proponents of Proposition 13 have not hesitated to resort to class prejudice in their metropolitan utterances in an attempt to convince voters that the cities are entiled to run both houses of the Legislature and that thet rural communities have no right to expect more than token representation in the Senate.

Needless to say, should these blandishments succeed in piling up a big city vote in favor of Proposition 13, the anticipated "NO" vote against the measure in rural areas would be woefully inadequate to prevent passage of this dangerous legislation.

At the present time, Northern and Southern California committees against reapportionment are working day and night to bring the truth about Proposition 13 before every California voter. Their job is a tremendous one and it must be supplemented by individual efforts on the part of all who are alive to the viciousness of this measure. We must convince our friends and our neighbors that a "NO" vote on No. 13 is the only fair and sensible vote to cast in November.

Despite the glib talk of Proposition 13 supporters about "democratic" representation which reapportionment would bestow upon people living in metropolitan districts, the fact is that Proposition 13 is essentially a political scheme to destroy representative government in California.

This objective would be accomplished through reapportionment of the Senate on a population, instead of an area, basis, thus ending our State system of legislative checks and balances. With these balances gone, the rural districts of California would be disfranchised. Radical minded labor dictators, entrenched in the cities, would be given a green light to impose their warped will upon minority and majority alike through legislative dictation.

Under the present "Federal plan" of legislative representation, metropolitan strength in the Assembly is fairly balanced by rural strength in the Senate—a formula which has served and strengthened the Nation's governmental processes since America's birth. California's legislative system today contains a fundamental guarantee of majority rule tempered by the recognition of minority rights. This system is a bulwark against radical bossism —and it is a system which Proposition 13 would destroy.

Mr. Garrett McEnerney II, of San Francisco, chairman of the Northern California Committee Against Reapportionment, issued a statement recently which should be emblazoned everywhere. He said: "Responsible rank and file labor union members should realize that absolute legislative control by left-wing labor leaders would open the road to dictatorship over all labor; union men can help themselves to better leadership and fight off slavery to the radical hierarchy of labor bosses by refusing to shackle themselves with a form of government such as Proposition 13 would create."

And in the recent editorial words of the San Francisco Chronicle denouncing Proposition 13: "all experience with really corrupt political machines is urban . . . urban-originated bossism at Sacramento could turn narrow urban interests against those rooted in agriculture, California's greatest economic asset, with catastrophic results."

Proposition 13 deserves to be beaten—but it can be beaten by votes alone. Remember that on November 2.

ONE GREAT DIFFERENCE

The Soviet Union, like all states of its character, is supposed to exist solely for the benefit of the masses of its people. The capitalist states, according to the communists, exist principally to permit the few to exploit the many.

When it comes to the practice, a very different picture emerges. The system under which cosmmodities are distributed in Russia is a good example. The government buys products at prices which are arbitrarily determined by itself, and which are very low. But it resells goods, through government-owned stores, at very high prices. In other words, its mark-ups, by American standards, would be considered fantastically large.

The result of this price control policy is inevitable. The average Russian family gets just enough to keep body and soul together and no more.

The vicious capitalists work on another theory called free enterprise. Supply and demand determine prices. Competition is intense. The profits of industry usually run to five per cent or so. The stores which sell goods are privately owned, no one enjoys a monopoly of anything, and the customer is free to trade where he pleases. Consequently, they too must operate on an extremely small profit to meet the competition and hold their trade. So the American public has an unequalled standard of living—and the highest attainable degree of personal freedom along with it. That explains one great difference between the two systems. And all the hot air from the left wing can't change it.

VEHICLE PRODUCTION

Motor vehicle production by United States factories in the month of June showed an increase of 27 percent over May. During June 312,406 passenger cars, 117,572 motor trucks, and 1,055 motor coaches were produced to make a total of 431,033 units. During May 225,461 passenger cars, 111,789 motor trucks, and 1,281 motor coaches were produced to make a total of 338,531 units. Peak month for post-war production was March 1948, when 492,013 motor vehicles were turned out.
